At 1 p.m. on 23 August 1947, three Soviet single engine monoplanes (fighter planes) landed on the river at Chiamussu (150-21, 46-49). In addition to the pilots there were two Soviet officers, a colonel and a major, who were escorted to the Chiamussu Chinese Military School by the head of the school and two instructors. The Soviet officers remained at the school during the next day and selected a number of superior students for further study in the USSR. On 25 August the two officers and three planes took off, destination unknown.
